Australia was discovered in 1606. Abel Tasman saw New Zealand 36 years later. Abel Tasman was from Holland but it was the British who came to rule both countries.

Captain Cook landed in Australia and New Zealand and these two countries became British colonies. The British started the first colony in Australia on the 26th January 1788. At that time there were some people living in Australia. These people were called aborigines and they lived in small groups. The British killed a lot of them and took their land. Now many of the aborigines live in reservations.

At first, there were several colonies in Australia, but they formed one state in 1901.

61 years earlier, New Zealand became a British colony. The original people who lived in New Zealand were called Maoris. The British had to buy land from them and make agreements how to run the country. Now many Maoris live and work in cities together with the British.
